„Im Schatten der Erde erkennt der Mond die Liebe – zeitlos, teilend, eins mit allem.“

This work merges the awe of a total lunar eclipse with an artistic quotation from a new interpretation by I. Lorenz and ChatGPT et. al. of Manet's "Le Déjeuner sur l'herbe." The blood-red moon, tinted by scattered sunlight in the Earth's shadow, becomes a canvas for a scene that symbolises unity and timelessness.

- The circle of figures suggests: those who recognize love within themselves are one with all; those who do not (yet) still remain part of the shared table.
- The floating figure links nature (the waterfall) with togetherness: embodying flow, the state of being at one.
- Prehistoric creatures hint at timelessness – a foundation of the model of love.
- The moon itself appears as a feminine symbol: dividing and sharing, yet seen here in Earth's shadow – a reminder of love's absence that we too often witness on Earth.
